VICTORIA THEATRE. THEATRE that pleated young Colonial Actor and Autho

who will appear TO-NIGHT, SATURDAY, June 23, in the entirely original Celenial Semanton Drama, TRANSPORTED FOR LIFE

Transported for Life
Transported for Life
Transported for Life,
Written by George Darrell, author of "The Trump Card,"
"The Four Fetes," "The Struggle for Freedem," "Under the Ban," &c., &c. Note.—This drama is entirely original, illustrating incidents of carly colonial life. Its production in the chief-cities of New Zealand was attended with immediate and unprecedented success.

What the New Zealand Press said.

"Mr. Geerre Darrell's great play of "Transported for Life' was repeated to a brines as crowded as on the occasions of its two previous performances. It passed off with brilliant auccess, and was received with the greatest enthusiasan we shown iswards any drama given in Weilington." Enthusiastic calls for the author and others of the dramatic persons at the end of every act. We can only pronounce "Transported for Life' to be a most unqualified success." —LITTELTON TIMES.

"Transported for Life' was as genuine and legitimate auccess as has ever been made in Wellington."—New Zealand Times.

Zealland Times.

"At the close of the diggings scene, where Hubert Chandos (Mr. Darrell) is recented from the shaft, the chainst the worked up to the highest possible pitch of enthusiasm. There were loud cheers and cries for Mr. Darrell's appearance before the curtain."—Oraco Grandias.

"It may be preneunced a decided success. The enthusiastic reception that "Transported for Life" and its author won from the large audience assembled in the Queen's Theatre last night is ample proof of this."—O'raco Times.

"The production of the new play "Transported for Life" at the theatre last night was a brilliant and unmistakable success."—Wellington Post.

RAILWAY FROM WALLERAWANG TO MUDGEE.

Mr. ROUSE moved that the order of the day for the considerating by Committee of the Whole of the resolutions advocating the construction of a rilliany when Walkinstone to Mudgee be discharged from the paper.

Mr. COMBES and he had beget to hear sume debate on the subject, and that the bins. Insulver would have given some facts with reference to Mudgee generally. However, as the affair account to have been out and tried, and the hon. gentlemen had only to ask but for receive, perhaps it was as well for the creative, perhaps it was as well for the Coursemant insended to sat in this matter, and the position in which they dood with regard to this railway proposal are.

Mr. M. ELHONE said this was mather a funny suding to all the nose and fune made about this given Mudgee refugely. He would like to know what the monther for Mudgee to give up in this sudden and mytherioni minure this rail way, the support of which was the reason with the hom. member was prequent to the X Bonse.

for the purpose of opening up the country.

Sir JOHN ROBERTSON did not think there was any fair ground for complaint at the course the Government had pursued. The hon, member for Orange inquired if the plans were reedy. Of course they were ready. They were prepared by the last Government. They were strengly and bitterly appead by nearly every member of the present Government, and, particularly, by the Minister for Works. Whafever the late Government did, the members of the present Government appead. New the present Government ambmitted the proposals of their prodecessors, and offered inclining in justification, accepting the fact that it was proposed by their predecessors. He did not complaint; he was every glad for any in prodecessors. He did not complaint; he was every glad for any in prodecessors and badgering connected with a Ministerial position. He complimented the hon. member on the minner in which he had worked this dodge. But the hon, member was a reassiste to the party that put him into Parliament. (Cheers.) He had all the support of their (the Opposition) party, and all the opposition of the party had parties were so evenly balanced, he went over to the other side in order that he might get the rallway, well knowing that the party he described would not turn their bads upon it. That was why he turned reasonad. (Cheers.)

Sir JOHN ROBERT CON: That was the bargain that the hon, member should get the Mudgee railway, and he reduced to let the Governor send the Parliament before the people. The hon, member had been wise in his generation; whether his country had been creditable or not was another thing. However, he was not going to change his colours in thing. thing. However, he was not going to change his cole retraid to this question. He was gird to find th Government had changed theirs. Government had changed theirs. The hon. member (Mr. Rouse) had add himself and bought this Mudge railway, and he (Sir John Robertson) would do all in his power to sid him in getting it.

Mr. S. C. BROWN said he had not intended to take not in this debare, but no min of feeling could sit still and team to the grose stanck which had been made on his bon. friend the member for Mudgeo. If there was any man in his House, or in this country, by whom the word remognoshould not be spoken, that man was the hon. member for West Sydney (Sir John Robertson). (Cheers.) He (Nr. Brown) came into the Mouse a devoted follower of the hon. gentleman, and stack to him for years, when the hon gentleman sold him and the rest of his atherents, ast for a railway, not for any benefit to the country, but for a pairty £2000 a year for himself. (Cheers.)

Sir JOHN ROBERTSON: That has been empleaned.

Mr. S. C. BROWN: What did the hem. gentleman mean by calling the hon. member for Mudges's renegade? What had he done to deserve the name of renegade? Secures its Opposition parts supported him, was in therefore to fees his right of judgement? He did not believe that his ben. friend was a renegade. He believed that the hon. member could go before his constituents and axplain the vote he gave on the occasion referred to by Sir John Rebertson. He (Mr. Resway) regretted that more had not been made of that celebrated minute which was read this Hons. The recentivations question involved in the astice had been lest eight of in the heat of party feeling; out it would be found, when calmy considered, that them who we red against the Government acted in a constitutional way, and for the best interests of the sountry. He was sentended that the pentilevate who voted on the occasion evolute he had, and voted against it.] The later Pennier saids about the beaution who it was suite interests of the house, the best interests of the sountry. He was sentended to the best interests of the sountry. He was sentended to the hear, when it was a the hear of the hear gentlemen this afternoon; and he mississes that if the dectrine of the hen, gentlemen eppedit was correst—that he same a member happened to be mescalined with a number of persons when he came into the Heuse he less all right to enemies his judgment—it was a doctrine he could not at all agree with. From his knowledge of the hoa, member for Mudgee, and perhaps he had known him longer than any other miss in this city had known him longer than any other miss in this city had known him, length that did not believe there was a more independent man sitting in that Hense than the hoa, gentleman. [Mr. WISDOM: The Minister for Works did not say so in June last.] He did not car what the Minister for Works had sait. These was not one word that would tell against the independence of the hommember for Mudgee, and he did not described address of the hongentleman (Sir John Robertson) was quite uncalled for, and he should take no further notice of it than to say that on the two scussions when the hon, member for Mudgee came to him an anomaly and man he has he was consistent when he hom member for member for man the two scussions when the hon, member for Mudgee came to him an an enember of a denutrate on aking to

Mr. HOSKINS thought the very excited address of the hon-gentleman (Sir John Robertson) was quite uncalled tor, and he sheald take no further notice of it than to say that on the two scensions when the hon, member for fludges came to him as a member of a deputation asking for the construction of a railway to Mudges, he did mething that was derogatory to his character as a man and a gentleman. (Cheers.) The hom, gentleman simply advanced reasons in suppose of the prayers of two positions which he presented in favour of railway construction from Wallerswang to Mudges. Not one word had fallen from the hear gentleman that is any way reflected upon his integrity, or that would in any way justify the abnaive epithet of renegade applied to him by the has, gentleman opposite. He thought hen, centlemen will give reduces to what he said. Mr. WiSDOM: Will the hon, gentleman state when the money would five verdence to what he said. Mr. WiSDOM: Will the hon, gentleman state when the money would five wore permitted to hold office, to sak the sandial of Parliament to the consideration of the subject of a railway from Wallerawang to Mudges during the present smion. He hoped the flon, member for Orange was satingly what was not prapared to give any definite statement on the subject of the consequence of the trial surveys not being finished at the time. Since that statement was mot prapared to give any definite statement on the subject of the Bulways, have now in a position to assure the house that the Government would from the Englance of the rail surveys having been completed, and from the information he had created from the Englance of the rail surveys had not also that the last Government had plans ready for the construction of the railway survey from Wallerawang to Mudges. How could that statement be consistent with the statement he had made, asset on the authority of the gentleman best qualified to give information, that the trial surveys for the construction of the railway surveys of she authority of the gentleman best qua

The Sydney Morning Merald.

SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1877.

In the Legislative Assembly, yesterday, Several questions were asked, the replies to which will be found in the report in chief.
On the motion of Mr. Conen, it was ordered that there be laid upon the table of the House a return showing the number of letters that have passed to and from the General Post Office and the suburbs to which the penny postage has been extended.

from the General Post Office and the suburbs to which the penny postage has been extended. It was ordered that the petition from certain residents of Plattsburg and Wallsend against the present system of immigration be printed.

Mr. Durvez laid upon the table report of Surveyor-General on survey of road from Walgett to Nugil.

Ordered to be printed.

Mr. Rouss moved that the order of the day for the consideration in Committee of the Whole of the resolutions respecting the railway from Wallerawang to Mudgee be discharged from the paper, the Government having consented to place a sum of money on the Estimates for the purpose.

Mr. Combine Wallerawang on the estimates—this intended to place this money on the estimates—this intended to place this money on the estimates—this session or next?

After observations from Mr. M.Elhone, Sir John Rohentson, and Mr. S. C. Brown,
Mr. Hoskins said that the Government intended to ask Parliamentary sanction to the construction of a railway from Wallerawang to Mudgee during the present session.

After further debate of a somewhat disorderly and very discursive character, and during the course of which numerous points of order were raised, attention was called to the presence of strangers, and the galleries were cleared.

galleries were cleared.

Strangers were excluded at ten minutes past 6 o'clock, and were not readmitted during the remainder of the sitting.

The House adjourned at twenty minutes past 10 o'clock until 4 p.m. on Monday next.

LORD CARNARVON'S despatch on the Queens and Gold-fields Act Amendment Bill, remitted the question to the Queensland Ministry for reconsideration, with the hope that "they would feel able to recommend provisions which would not only be less calculated to cause injury to British subjects of Asiatio or African origin, but would appear less directly and exclusively aimed at the subjects of a friendly Power with which it was for the advantage of the Empire at large that free intercourse should be maintained." The bill was disallowed in its original shape because, in the view of the Imperial Government it was adapted to pre-judice the rights of some of her MAJESTY'S subjects of Asiatic or African origin, and be-cause it was in conflict with treaty obliga-tions which Great Britain had incurred with respect to China. It was admitted that the regulation of Chinese immigration was one of those questions of internal administration with which the colonial Legislature had to deal. But, at the same time, the SECRETARY

OF STATE said:—
"I can see no substantial difference in principle between a law imposing a special tax upon the subjects of a friendly state, to be paid before they land in the colony, and a special tax to be paid by the subjects of the same State after they have landed, but before they are allowed to proceed to those parts of the colony which it is known that they are most likely to frequent. It appears to me that the law creating such a tax must, in either case, be regarded as specially intended to debar the subjects of that particular State from the enjoyment of privileges accorded to the rest of the world; and whether the privilege is that of residing in one of the British colonies or of residing in a particular part of that colony, the restrictions which prevent their doing so appear to me to be in both cases equally open to objection." OF STATE said :-

In another part of the despatch the SECRETARY OF STATE, in referring to the Convention of Pekin, said, "It is obvious that the 5th Article contemplated that all Chinese subjects Therefore, if this branch of our manufunction of second goes to show that the establishment might be more chesply conducted on shore than affoat; and a quantity imported, £9200.

Therefore, if this branch of our manufunction on farm would be more to the manufunction of the industrial training on a farm would be more to the manufunction. should have full freedom of entering the British dominions without special restrictions or impediments." How the Queensland Legislature could deal with the matter so as to carry into effect its desire "to restrict or prohibit an influx of Chinese into the Gold-fields," and yet meet the objec-If we were fighting merely for the epho-meral glory of victory we should stop here, but this investigation has been forced upon objections of Lord CARNARVON, to whom that us in the interest of truth, and we shall desire, as here described in his own words, was patent, is a problem hard to solve; and Lord CARNARVON'S despatch, if distinguished by any one thing more than another, is distinguished by its failure to point out any such solution of it.

ment to the despatch is the reintroduction of the Gold-fields Bill with modifications, and the preparation of a Chinese Immigration Bill, with the avowed hope that together they will "effectually put a stop to the invasion of the Chinese in all parts of the colony at the pre-sent time." We are not acquainted with the peculiar character of the Chinese Immi-gration Bill, but the nature of the alter-ations in the Gold-fields Bill was pointed out by Mr. THORN and Mr. GRIF-FITH when the second reading was under discussion on the 13th instant. Mr. GRIFFITH's view of the despatch is that it onsists of two parts, the first or justification of the action of Governor Carnes, and the next mainly composed of good advice. The new bill so far complies with that good advice as to give effect in some degree to what Mr. GRIFFITH also terms the "verbal criticisms" contained in it. One clause of the old bill, which would have come with special severity upon British subjects of Chinese origin, coming from Hongkong, for instance, is omitted; and other provisions nstance, is omitted; and other provisions relating to the enforcement of payments on the gold-fields have been made general in their operation. But the special charges of £3 and £10 respectively for miners' rights and trade licenses, in place of the 10s. and £4 required from the rest of the world, are re-tained; and the main object of the bill is now candidly avowed in the oreamble, which sets forth that "it is desirable to discourage the immigration of such aliens" (that is, Asiatics and Africans), "and their employment in gold mining." It appears, therefore, that, although one of the rounds of Imperial objection to the bill may have been lessered, or possibly removed, the other remains as before. Instead of the bill being "less directly and exclusively aimed at the subjects of a friendly Power," that character attaches to it as much as before; and it is as clearly as before hostile to the spirit of the

The advice given to Queensland by the late Premier of Victoria is to stick to the bill. and press it, as the home Government will probably do as it did with Victoria—"grin and bear it." This advice accords apparently with the disposition of the Queensland Government. Those who desire the dismemberment of the Empire will, of course, rejoice at every prospect of setting the Imperial and Colonial Governments by the ears; but those who desire that the union should be maintained with dignity and self-respect on both sides will desire some amicable solution of this and of all similar difficulties.

As we have pointed out, the laws passed some years ago by New South Wales and Victoria were just as much infringements of he treaty with China as the Queensland law s: and, indeed, they were severer in form, seeing that it is harder on a Chinaman to tax him for the right of disembarking than it is to tax him for the license to dig gold.
But there are two differences to be noted between now and then. In the days when the Duke of Newcastle was Colonial Secretary, the favourite Whig policy was that of colonial independence, and there was not nuch objection felt to the self-willed assertion much objection felt to the self-willed assertion of colonial Governments. That was all a help towards a desired solution. Now, a different policy prevails; but in proportion as the unity of the Empire is desired, in that proportion is it necessary to regulate harmoniously the rights of the Imperial and Colonial Governments. The second difference lies in the increasing restlessness of China under the treaty. As we have lately pointed but the conjum clauses of that treaty are conout, the opium clauses of that treaty are conthat as soon as China can, it will repudiate that bondage. That treaty is of great com-mercial advantage to England, and Australia has had its share of this advantage. The Queensland law, being by the admission of Lord Carnaron an infringement of the treaty, would give China just the excuse it desires for a reclamation. There would be no need for it to go to war, for if Great Rritain disregards the treaty, China is entitled to do

HAVING compared the tariffs of New South Wales and Victoria since the foundation of both colonies, we are now in a position to inquire into their bearing upon trade and manufactures. We shall begin by an examination of those which the special correspondent of the Age, lately sent to Sydney to make inquiry on the spot, reported to be hastening to decay—not because these are by any means an adequate representation of our industrial ondition, but because they have been specially selected for attack; and the general case can be stated more clearly after the particular objections have been fairly considered.

Referring to our soap and candle manufactures the Age's correspondent says, "when these figures are compared with the large and steady growth of similar industries in Victoria, it is not too much to say that while they have been developed under protection they been extinguished by free trade." What "have been extinguished by free trade." What "have been extinguished"—the figures or the industries? The meaning must be that the soap and candle manufactures of New South Wales were developed by protection and are declining under free trade; and, if so, that is a matter which may be tested. Taking the years which he himself selected for comparing son, we find that the net import of candles in 1866 was 1,003,900 lbs., valued at £45,514, and the colonial produce was returned at 2,614,192 lbs. In 1875, the net import of candles was 2,208,040 lbs., valued at £51,392, and the colonial factories produced 1,324,736 lbs. But what bearing has this upon the dispute between freetraders and protectionists? The Age's correspondent jumps at a conclusion the very reverse of the fact. In 1868 the duty on factures is being extinguished, it is protection rather than free trade that must bear the blame, because the duty ever since 1871 has been twice as heavy as in 1866.

therefore follow the facts to their legitimate issues in whatever direction they may lead. Under the Dras-Thomson tariff, from 1852 to 1866, candles were altogether exempt from duty in this colony, yet the local produce in 1860 was nearly four million pounds in weight, and was larger than it has ever been since. In short, whatever the tariff may have been, the produce of consecutive years rises and falls with the utmost irregularity, and therefore the causes of variation must be sought elsewhere than in taxation. No other explanation is necessary than the facts that a year of drought may greatly reduce the price of the raw material by necessitating the boiling-down of perhaps millions of sheep; that a rush to some new gold-field may empty the works of their best labourers; or the abstraction of the capital of one important firm from this branch of industry on account of failure, or removal from the colony, may make all the difference in the return of successive years. With the small populations yet to be found in any of the Australasian colonies such fluctuations are inevitable, and it will scarcely be denied that the tendency of protection is to aggravate them by creating monopolies at the public expense, and by refusing the help which the abundance of other countries may enable them to give, just as our abundance in other things may enable us to help them. If it were possible to place the Victorian produce of successive years side by side with our own, the relative position of the two colonies in regard to this branch of manufacture could be seen at a glance. Unfortunately the Victorian Statistical Register omits this item altogether. We have had to complain scores of times of the imperfect manner in which the attriction of this orders are in which the statistics of this colony are taken, but is there not also room for improvelet us try to make the best of such data as may be within our reach. In 1862 Victoria had no duty on candles, and the net import was 4,985,329 lbs. In 1869 the duty was one penny per lb., and the import for home consumption was 1,212,043 lbs. But the duty paid during that year was £15,883, which covers the entry of 3,812,024 lbs. at the Custom-house. As the total export of candles from Victoria for that year was only 661,380 lbs., there are nearly two million pounds in weight still to be accounted for, according to the quantity reported as having paid Customs. This is an anomaly of Victorian statistics which we are quite unable to explain. But, to pass on, in 1875 the quantity imported for home of the city without unnecessary delay."

RAHLWAY TO MUDGE.—Vesterday, a deputation, constitution, constitution, constitution, which we have the constitution, which we have the constitution of the railway extension from Wallersang to out the benefit that would accuse from such an extension, and saked the minister what steps the Government would take in reference the autor. Mr. Hock as, in reply, income the deputation that the Government had fully decide to construct the line and that the sum necessary should be placed on the Loan Estimates. The tral curvey had been made, and would be haid on the table or the House when the Loan Estimates. At all events the plans, acctions, and an anomaly of Victorian statistics which we are quite unable to explain. But, to pass on, in 1875 the quantity imported for home together the net imports and the local produce of New South Wales, we find that the average annual consumption may be taken at six pounds per head of the population. According to that rate, and the only detailed return of the candle manufacturing industry groups it under the head "Soap, candle, and tallow works," which gave employment to 488 hands in 1875, and that a total capital of £134,866 was invested in ma-chinery and plant, lands and buildings. There does not appear to be any means of separating these returns, but it is quite sufficient to notice that the duty on candles alone over and above that which the people of New South Wales have to pay costs Victorian consumers, in the increased rice of this article, an annual sum equal to 15 per cent. on the whole capital invested in the soap, candle, and tallow business of that colony, on a sum equal to 245 per annum or nearly one a sum equal to £45 per annum, or nearly one pound per week, for every "hand" employed in these local industries. In our asylums in Sydney, Parramatta, and Liverpool we had at the close of last year 1109 paupers who cost the colony on the average less than £15 each, or only one-third of the amount which the protected candle-makers of Victoria cost the public of that colony as compared with the same class of workmen in New South Wales. Is it inappropriate to ask whether this game be worth the caudle? To make it equitable every other industry ought to be "assisted" to precisely the same extent, and then there would be a universal scale of high artificial prices in which everybody would remain relatively the same, so far as the colony is concerned; but in regard to the rest of the world, the public as a whole would be losers by the entire difference in price caused by protective legislation. In future issues we propose to follow up this inquiry in regard to all other branches of trade and manufactures capable of being fairly compared.

THE Vernon has been one of our social experiments The Vernon has been one of our social experiments, and we cannot expect to make experiments that shall always be a success, and that shall never cost us anything. There was a particular evil to be dealt with, and a training ship was thought at the time to be the best way of dealing with it. The idea was that we should not only clear the streets of vagrant boys, but that we should give them an economical education and drill, and provide a class of amorantics to the Age's correspondent jumps at a conclusion the very reverse of the fact. In 1866 the duty on candles imported into the colony was 5 per cent. ad valores, which gave the revenue candles imported into the colony was 5 per cent. ad valores, which gave the revenue characteristic concerned, a fair degree of success has been obtained; but in respect of the economy and the training of late to the sea, there has been nothing that ld per lb., which is equivalent to at least a can be called success. The examination of the the industrial training on a farm would be more to the purpose than merely learning to make boots on board. Why it is that street arabs have a dislike to the sea is, perhaps, a difficult question to answer; nor is it altogether clear at present whether in proportion to our population we have the requisite number of youths of any class in training for a sea-life to keep up the demand for our maritime business. At present most of our sailors are imported that were present most of our sailors are imported; they work their way out in ships and get their discharge, or run their way out in ships and get their discharge, or run away. As a rule, our coasting service is carried on by sailors who are not natives. Whether we shall always get in this way as many seamen as we require, it must be left to the future to determine; but, though acquatic sports are not unpopular, a sea-faring life does not seem to have the same attraction for boys in Australia that it has for boys in the mother-country. Is the Norse element in the English blood boiled out by the Australian sun, or is it that life on shore in these easy-going lands is so much easier than life aflost, that the latter is nowhere in the competition? As to the Verne Sir Henry Parkes will, no doubt, take the last report Sir HENRY PARKES will, no doubt, take the last report into his serious consideration; as the ship was bought and fitted under his direction, he would probably pre-fer, if it is to be dispensed with, that he got rid of it himself rather than leave any successor or rival the joy of effecting a virtuous economy by putting this vessel out of commission.

THE PREMIER'S VISIT TO PARRAMATTA.—Mr. R. B. Smith, M. P. for the Hastings, and Mr. Day, M. P. for the Hunns, were of the party who accompanied Sir Henry Parkes on the occasion of his inspecting the charitable institutions at Parramatta, on Thursday.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT AMENDMENT BILL.—Yesterday evening, the Legislative Assembly dealt with this important measure with closed doors. On the order of the day being read, the bill was recommitted. Cluuse I was smended: and clauses 3, 4, 5, 6, 3, and 13 were omitted. The bill was reported with amendments, and the adoption of the report was made an order of the day.

was made an order of the day.

Cery Railway Extension.—Mr. Stuart's proposal that the Assembly should go into committee to consider a resolution affirming that the railway should be extended from the present terminus to the Circular Quay, come on for consideration again lest night. The question, though one of great public interest and importance, was dealt with while the public and the Press were excluded from the House. After a short debate, Mr. Hoskins withdrew his amendment to refer the matter to a select committee, and the original resolution was amended, at the instance of Sig Henry Parkes, by the omission of the words "Crealer Quay," and the insertion in the place of the words "northern part of the city." The resolution, in its amended from, was agreed to, and stands thus:—"That in the opinion of this House, the railesty ought to be exceeded from the present terminus at Reifern to the northern part of the city without unnecessary delay."

RAILWAY TO MUDDER.—Yesterday, a deputation, are quite unable to explain. But, to pass on, in 1875 the quantity imported for home consumption was 2,023,607½ lbs., and that is the quantity for which duty was actually paid at the rate of twopence per lb., yielding to the revenue £16,803. The total export for that year was 356,672 lbs. which does not seem to have yielded anything to the revenue. Thus Victoria appears to have lost nearly half her export trade in candles during the last six years, notwithstanding the exemption of re-export goods from duty. And while her merchants have had to endure this restriction upon their trade, the great body of consumers have had to pay a duty twice as heavy as the consumers of New South Wales. Nor is that all. Unless a duty is so exorbitant as to be prohibitive, it increases the price of local as well as imported produce by its whole amount. Adding together the not imports and the local produce of New South Wales, we find that the average annual consumption may be duce of New South Wales, we find that the average annual consumption may be taken at six pounds per head of the population. According to that rate, and supposing it to apply also to Victoria, the duty of one penny per Ib. cost New South Wales £14,886, and the duty of two-pence per Ib. cost Victoria £40,781 for the year 1875. Therefore, the Victorian candle manufacturers, as compared with those of New South Wales, had a bonus for that year out of the pockets of the people equal to £20,000. Turning to another part of the Victorian Statistical Register, we notice that the only detailed return of the candle manumember for the Tumnt, notwithstanding that his weal powers are far from feeble. The exclamations were not by any means vicious, as compared with the expletives to which we have become accustomed; but what was lacking in punguncy was made up in veherence and iteration. The Speaker repeatedly interposed, and, while hom. members protested their desire to support the authority of the chair, the Home seemed utterly unable to maintain that quiet and decorum which should mark the proceedings of any deliberative assembly, to say nothing of the Parliament of the country. Mr. Leary suggested, with great gravity, that the House should motify the public by advertisement, that on Friday night there would be a nerformance or light conedy, or broaf farce; and although the suggestion was, doubtiess, highly disorderly, the implied rebute was well timed. The servous system of hom, members, especially of the beliberest sections of the House, seems to have been subjected to targreat a strain, and if medical advice were had it would doubtless attribute the excessive irritability of our-legislation portracted stitings to five nights of the week. The conduct of business in the Assembly of late has not been such as to inspire very hopeful views of the successful worsing of Constitutional devorenment in the colony; and a stranger observing the orrate exhibition of last night, might be pardoned if he accepted the proceedings of last night as proof of our incapacity for self-government. Attention was three times called to the presence of strangers, and the palleries were cleared from ten minutes after 6 o'clock for the rest of the evening. There was a large crowd of persons about the outer doors of the Assembly all the evening, considing apparently of persons who had come to hear the debate on the proposal to extend the rathway into the city.

IME AMMIGRANT SHIT COMMONWEALTH ORDERED INTO QUARANTINE.— Early gesterday morning, the slip Commonwealth arrived from London with 452 passagers. She was towed up the harbour, and anchored near Garden Island. Dr. Alleyne, the port health officer, upon barring of the ship's arrival, as soon as possible came up from the Quarantine Station, where he had remained on Thursday night, anticipating the arrival of the Pacific M. S. S. Zealandia, from San Francisco. The mail steamer Braham, however, having come in at about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Dr. Alleyne proceeded on board, and was energed in making his examination, when the Commonwealth was being towed in, otherwise he would have boarded her near the Heada. At about 9 o'clock he paid a visit of inspection to the Commonwealth, and learning that there had been fifted deaths on board, he ordered her to turn buck, to serve such time in quarantine as might be deemed expedient. Fourteen of the deaths are attributed to measles, and one whooping cough, and they were all deaths of children. From the letter forwarded by the Agont-General, it would appear that 462 immigrants, including 131 children (qual to 330 adults), sailed in the abip from Ludon. There were five births on board during the voyage. Yesterday afternoon the health officer made another inspection of the ship, and she will be required to remain in the Quaruntine Station until all the ship's clothes at washed, and until such time as the may be pronounced free free disease. We learn that the measles were very prevaled during the early part of the vivage, but that no fresh case have been noticed during the last two or three weeks.

EXTENSION OF THE RAILWAY.—It is suggested by a correspondent that the terminus of the railway for heavy merchandise should be at the head of the harbour of the Abattofrs, and that a branch line should be made to connect that point with the railway about Newtown.

THE DEFENCE QUARTION.—Mr. Leopold M. Muller, late lieutenant in the Garde Nationale of Hamburg, writes to us strongly advocating the formation of a National Guard for the defence of this colony. He thinks a few gusboats would prove more effective than an ironized, and he highly commends the usefulness of the Naval Brigade.

War has been declared from Russia to Turkey. Emperor Alexander has communicated this fact to his people in a special manifesto, and Prince Gortschakoff has tried to offer reasons for it to the Powers in a circular note. The Russian troops have already passed the Pruth, and are moving towards the line of the Danube through Roumania. Russia takes whole year to finish her preparations for a war against Turkey. This is an experience which results from the former history of the Orient. If we look back on the time of the Orimean war we find that the first despatch of Drouyn de l'Huys is dated 15th January, 1853, while the last document which inaugurated the war, namely, a letter of Napoleon III. to the Czar, was written on the 29th of January, 1854. The diplomatic negotiations which preceded the present war lasted likewise a year, from the 10th of April, 1876, when the "pourparlers" for the Protocol began, to the 23rd of April, 1877, when the manifest of the Czar has been communicated to Russia and the rest of Europe. If an unprejudiced and impartial spectator judges those documents which have given the signal for the war he will find in them an accumulation of phrases exactly of such a nature as might have been foreseen For the population of Russia, which has for some time already been living in the greatest excitement, they will be sufficient to create such enthusiasm as is necessary to object than to efface the Ottoman Empire from

This is the fourth time in this century that Russia sends her troops for the same purpose over the Danube. The first Russian war against the Porte took place from 1807-1812, nd finished with the Peace of Bucharest, without having allowed Russia to destroy Furkey, whom she had believed half dead already before the beginning of the campaign. Fifteen years later Emperor Nicholas tried the same experiment, with a little more success. hilated the fruits of the peace of Adrianople. The successor of Nicholas, Emperor Alexander II., did not forget the experiences of his father opposite the Porte, and he hesitated long before he made up his mind to fight against Turkey. Russia against Turkey will be more tavourable German system, and such parts of that system in the end for the invader than formerly. At as are suitable to France have been copied.

German Government has Publicly expressed sympathies for Russia. The Courts of Russia, and North Germany are united to each other by bonds of blood and friendship, and the of gratitude for former services. Russia will therefore, on her way over the Danube, find no of the German Government will completely lepend upon Russia's behaviour, and whether the Czar will keep his programme and refrain from every new conquest. Should this not be the case, and should the interests of Germany and Austria begin to suffer, then Germany would be obliged to forget every regard and would have to watch for her interests. For the moment Russia may rely on German friendship, at least from the Government party though perhaps not so much on that of the

In Austria Russia finds a great opposition in the population. Austrians as well as s, do not wish to see the Russian influence over the Slav elements still increasing, and want to see the mouth of the Dannbe kept free from Russian supremacy. On the other hand there is at the Court in Vienna a party who wishes Austria to occupy and annex Boania, for which purpose it would be necessary to go with Russia and against Turkey. For the moment these two very decidedly antagonistic opinions are united in sity to go together with Germany, as both their interests run parallel up to a certain point. Russia knows this very well, and is therefore convinced that, at least for the first stage of the war, Austria will keep a strict should hint that peace was not for France stage of the war, Austria will keep a strict perfectly satisfied with the policy of these two neighbours, she has to be all the more anxious and that the Russian-Turkish struggle will arding the movements of England. The English Cabinet is, at the moment when Russia declares war, free of all obligations, and has nothing to protect and consult but her own inmost interests. Everybody knows these interests. They consist in the supremacy over the Mediterranean and the Black Sea, in the control over Egypt, and in securing the road on sea and land to India. The religious question, which Russia puts in the foreground, has little significance for England. The ground, has little significance for England. herself on the Austrian frontiers. France has lately declared several times that her only desire is for peace. The position of France is for the moment very delicate, and the French Government has to do all in its power not to awaken sus-picions. The offers which France has made during the former phases of the Oriental Question have all been rejected; France is therefore quite isolated for the moment, and will most likely keep her hands free. Its future movements will be influenced by the turn which affairs take. The general face of the situation is for the moment favourable for Russia. Her armies will on their way only find resistance from the Turks, and the war will be localised as long as Russia keeps her promises. Should she begin to show the intention of conquests, a general conflagration will then be unavoidable and will immediately begin.

I need scarcely add what fears are hourly rising from the certainty of the war, and how many "points noirs" are showing on the political horizon. The disposition to look closely at the mutual relations of all the Powers, in order to see what degree of strain they might be expected to bear, is only natural, and for Germany it is only right to study minutely how she stands opposite France, her nearest neighbour and her decided enemy. It would be absurd to suppose that Powers, in order to see what degree of strain arouse the Russian Slavs to a combat against France can so soon forget the causes or the the arch-enemy. In the rest of Europe it will results of the war of 1870. Germany is certainly not be believed that it is only the certainly not mistaken if she believes that introduction of reforms in the Christian France would like to win back Alsace-Lorraine, provinces of Turkey which has driven Russia and even to push her territory as far eastward to make the decision of these reforms a question dependent on the luck of arms; in the rest of Europe this war will be looked upon as a further step on the road of the traditional Oriental policy of Russia, which has no other have left the impression that France goes to war with more levity than other nations, and that in her the love of glory is as powerful as ambition or self-interest is in other countries. Count Moltke, the master of strategy, the great thinker, who seldom talks, has, to-day, made a speech in the German Parliament during the discussions regarding the military budget. In this speech he has particularly referred to the above-mentioned characteristic of the French nation, and to the urgent necessity which therefore exists for Germany always to be ready for defence. same experiment, with a little more success, for the peace of Adrianople in 1829 may be regarded as the first step towards the destruction of the Turkish Empire through the Russian policy. The third attempt was made in 1853, and is still fresh in the memory of the contemporaries. This second crusade broke the heart of Emperor Nicholas, and annipletely recovered from the disasters of 1870. The army of France is now no longer the loose inefficient machine which was shattered to pieces at Gravelotte and Sedan. The bonds of discipline have been drawn tighter, the officers have to study their duties thoroughly. Twenty years passed before the experiment of Vast sums have been spent on the equipment of the former Czar was tried again, and the future will show, whether this fourth war of ization has been revised by the light of the the present moment when the war has only just begun, the greatest interest is given to conjectures about the possible consequences of the struggle, and about the extent which it will take. The question whether the Russian or the Turkish troops are stronger, better, and more valiant, is much discussed; but the greatest suspense reigns in regard to the movement of the other Powers. Views on this point have lately been very much changing and vacillating. very much changing and vacillating.

Russia begins the war without any active support from the other powers, for only the German Government has Publicly expressed Moltke has particularly called attention to the be has particularly called att mpathies for Russia. The Courte of Russia, d North Germany are united to each other bonds of blood and friendship, and the amd the German frontier, that this step was sman Government owes Russia a great deal clearly showing how France intended gratiful for furner agriculture. to take an offensive position opposite Germany, and that, therefore, the Gerresistance from Germany, but the after bearing man military authorities were obliged to take defensive measures accordingly. This speech of the habitually silent great aeneral has created the greatest excitement, and the Bourse was very much troubled thereby. I think, as far as my political con-jectures go, that the object of this speech was not so much to frighten Germany as to warn France. The clerical party in France is continually starting new intrigues against Germany, but the judicious elements of the population will well understand Count Moltke's warning, and will do all they can to advise reserve. Though France is now perhaps stronger for defence than she was in 1870, she is certainly weaker for aggression. The way across the Rhine is barred by the great fortresses which immense army of Germany in the field would require a far larger force than France has been able to organize. No French Minister would propose a march towards the Rhine under my circumstances. Even the most sanguine the supreme necessity of the hour. I can therefore not believe that real danger is ment to be very cautious, and influencing thereby the Russian actions.

Italy preserves at present a benevolent neutrality and will only demand that the status quo should be kept up in the Orient. Only in case Austria should extend her territories in Bosnia, Italy would then ask the same for herself on the Austrian frontiers. France has lately declared several times that her only very fine speeches, expressed in many places his admiration, and excited everywhere the most genuine feelings of love and respect, by the great simplicity of his manners and the instinctive kindness of his whole bearing.

APRIL 26. FIRST ACCOUNT PROM THE SEAT OF WAR. Military action in the Russian-Turkish war has begun. On the night of the 23rd to the 24th of April the Russian troops passed the Roumanian frontier at several points, and are nearing as quickly as possible the line of the Danube. The insufficiency of the means of communication, the miserable state of the roads in Roumania, make it very difficult to advance with large military bodies, and it will therefore take some time before the Russians will be able to take their intended positions. For the moment no certainty exists yet what plan of operation the Russians will take whether they will attack the Turkish fortresses Widdin, Rustochuck and Silistria, or whether they will only menace these fortresses just enough to occupy the Turkish garrison, and will try to cross the Danube at another point, and then force the Turks to a battle in the open field. From a military point of view this latter movement would be more commendable, and we fancy therefore that the Russians will adopt it.

Grand Duke Nikolsj-Nikolajewitsch, the brother of the Czar, has entered Roumania with 800,000 men, a very considerable army, but which is very much weakened in its force by the broad territory which it has to cover in because it has to secure the very long line for retreat. But this army is not all that Russia can command, and if need be a further mobilization will bring new Russian troops to the battle-field. Turkey, on the other hand, has done what she can do. Abdul Kerim Pasha, the highest commander of the Turkigh Pasha, the highest commander of the Turkish army near the Danube, has altogether about 200,000 Redifs and Nizams which occupy the fortresses and the Danube. The line which the Turks have to defend is a very long one, and the Turks can therefore only remain on the defensive. The Turkish chief of the staff, Nedjeb Pasha, is a very clever man, and he certainly will not take offensive movements. Though the Turks are considerably smaller in number than their aggressors, they will yet give the Russians hard work, for their posigive the Russians nard wors, for their posi-tions are most advantageous; their fortresses are good, the Danube is a natural protection, and even if these two should be lost, they enter the next powerful line of defence, the Balkan, The movements of the Turks will, of course, completely depend on those of the Russians, and the Turkish commanders will have enough to do to keep their eyes open, and at the decisive moment to have troops enough on the endangered points. For the moment it can only be said that the Turks seem to have more chances of victory than the Russians. The chances of victory than the Russians. The Turkish army is perfectly schooled and drilled, and has given the highest proof of courage and constancy, besides having an artillery which certainly does not stand back against that of Russis. If the Turkish army keeps up the enthusiasm which is now reigning amongst its lines, Europe will be the witness of a most fearful struggle.

It must be mentioned that the line of the Danube is not the only battle sea, but the Army of the Caucasus, under the Grand Duke Michael of the Caucasus, under the Grand Duke Michael Nikolajewitsch, another brother of the Czar, has begun to move away from Tifflis, in order to enter the Asiatic territories of the Turkish Empire. This army has about 200,000 men, to which the Porte can scarcely oppose 100,000 men. The Turkish fortr han and Kars, on this side, are very strong too, and the Russians will not easily conquer them if they attack them at all, which will depend on the course that events take near

Since the arrival of the first despatches from the war in the Orient the Morning Post takes a most menacing tone against Russia, saying, for instance, Russia has no honourable pretext for this war, she is forcing it on the Turkish Empire, and it can therefore be no question to which side the English sympathies will lean. We shall of, course, not put in our decision before our interests are menaced; but for how long will this be? The Indian and Central Asiatic question will soon come into the foreground, and the national will has long expressed itself to the end "that the Czar is never to possess Constantinople."

England is preparing for a war. In the money and ware market war prizes are noticed. Wheat and corn have, during the last week, risen 20s., and the bakers have heightened the price of bread Flax, hemp, and tallow, and other export articles from Russia have considerably risen in value, as it is feared that the Turks will blockade the Russian ports in the Black Sea. Shares are going down fearfully on the Stock Exchange, though English Consols still were 94½. The capital of the Continent, atraid of the chances of war, is flying to England, and therefore the Consols are still high. They have altogether lost 1½ per cent. during the last ten days. Only the correduring the last ten days. Only the correspondent of the Times and of the Daily News will be able to give accounts from the seat of war on the Russian side, as no other special correspondent from England is allowed to remain near the Russian head-quarters. THESE Flowers of the Free Lands are a collection of poems written in New Zealand and published in Melbourne. Like many other collections of poetic flowers, they have some-things in them that might be fairly criticised, and others that might well have been dispages will certainly do no discredit either to the modest author who has produced it, or to the enterprising publisher who has presented it to the world. It requires some courage in these days, either to write or to publish a new volume of poetry, and in the Australian colonies a work of this kind probably requires more courage than it does in many other places. If the poetic faculty has hitherto been very imperfectly developed in Australia, it is partly because it has never been greatly in demand, and partly because been greatly in demand, and partly because the modest author who has produced it, or to the Ars wallowed in life's whirlpool then—There's food for thought in all the plays, Sweet brooklet in the glen.

It would be easy to find a poem in which the lessons of the brooklet are better conceived and better described; but if the possession of the spirit of song and the power to clothe that spirit in felicitous speech are evidences of a poet—those evidences are certainly furnished by the author of the volume before us. As might be expected, there are artificial as well as natural ones. The following, for pensed with; but this little volume of 200 been very imperfectly developed in Australia, it is partly because it has never been greatly in demand, and partly because any demand there has happened to be has been followed in too many instances by indifferent supplies. There are, perhaps, very few who expect a new volume of Australian poetry to be more than a bundle of indifferent verses, and new volumes of mere verses are things which people rather pride themselves in despising.

The world it is sometimes supposed is getting altogether too practical and too sensible to stop to listen to what a new rhymer has to say. But while it is quite true that there is already much that is indifferent in the sphere of poetry, it is as true that there is much that is indifferent everywhere else. The absence of good poetry should increase rather than lessen the desire for it. As long as humanity and life remain what they are they will have their poetic as well as their prosaic aide. The world is full of poetry of some kind or other. Some of it is dark and some bright; some is and the least we can do is to weacome the writer who honestly and with the ability that is in him attempts to give it utterance.

The natural scenery, as well as the early history, of the Australian colonies furnishes quite as much material for poetry as for prose. Bret Harte has succeeded in showing us the poetic element that through the earlier life of California, and than Mr. Bracken has given us in this book, there is surely quite as legitimate a sphere for but there is also colonial poetry that is very a Bret Harte in Australia and New Zealand much worse than this. We shall be glad to order to be able to control the fortresses, and as in the United States of America. The because it has to secure the very long line author of these Flowers of the Free Lands is not Free Lands is such as to justify the publicayet a Bret Harte, but he is a poet who has no tion of this volume and to encourage the pubresson to be ashamed of his effusions, and lication of others of the same kind. who is entitled to speak with even less

Alens with his dog, when the night well was falling,
A digger sat draming of times that were fied,
For memory was painting old scenes, and recalling
Dear faces and forms from the realms of the dead.
His fancy renewed the old picture long faded.
The sheet in his hand seemed a leaf from life's tome;
Its paragraphs bright and its articles shaded—
He smiled and he sighed ever that paper from home.
A light-hearted boy, he embraced the old people,
He clumbed up the ivy that wrapped the church steeple,
Which stood on the hill to watch over the scene;
He blew from his childish pipe fanciful bubbles,
He featch his reed on the rivulet's foam:
The mountain of hope hid the ocean of troubles,
And fairies danced over that paper from home.

BURNED TO DEATH.—The Bendigo Advertiser is informed that a shocking occurrence took place at Safe's Hotel, near Echunga, about a fortnight ago, of which no notice has appeared in the public press. A bushman, after making some purchases at Mr. Safe's store, asked to be allowed to aleey for the night in an outhouse, where a quantity of begs of chaff were stored. He was allowed to do so, Mr. Safe taking the precaution of getting the man to deliver up his pipe to him, as no smoking could be allowed in a place where so much inflammable material was stored. About 3 o'clock the next morning Mr. Safe was awakened by one of his men, who informed him that a dense volume of amoko was issuing from the building in which the chaff was. On Mr. Safe going to the place a sickening sight presented itself. The begs of chaff were all aglowly the amouldering fire, and the bushman lay dead among them, his lower extremities being burnt to chartcoal. Strange to say, his face and the upper part of his body were untouched, and he appeared a calm and placid expression. The fire was speedily extinguished, and our informants attes that information of the catastrophe was forwarded to the police at Kerang, but me reply being received. After the lapse of several days the remaining were buried.

SUPREME COURT .- FRIDAY, JUNE 15. IN BANCO.—SECOND TERM.

IN RE BUENE V. KAVANAGE.

This application, for an attachment and writ of fl. fe., for disobedience by the defendant of an award, made a rule of Court, was heard last Tuesday, when judgment was reserved, pending a settlement. Mr. Selemons now proposed to read an affidavit showing that the costs of the arbitration had been paid by the parties, half by each side. He also offered on behalf of the pleintiff, to pay all the costs of the arbitration incurred by the defendant.

Mr. Cooper appeared for the defendant. The Court unanimously made the rule for the writ of fl. fe. absolute, the defendant to deduct from the smouth ordered to be paid, under the award, all his costs of the substration, and of the present motion; the costs to be taxed within a week. The Court were of opinion that the award was defective, as the arbitration did not thereby make any adjudication as to the costs, although they were required to do so by the submission. The plaintiff consented in open court to pay all the costs of the arbitration, so the defect was cured, as the defendant could not be placed in a better position if the award was remitted to the arbitration to deal with the costs. Had not the plaintiff accommendation of the present motion if the award was remitted to the arbitration to deal with the costs. Had not the plaintiff accommendation of the present motion if the award was remitted to the arbitration to defect we cured, as the defendant could not be placed in a better position if the award was remitted to the arbitration. So the defendance was consented, the rule would have been discharged; as it was, it would be made absolute with costs against the plaintiff.

IN REC. W. BEDWELL.

Mr. Cohen moved to make absolute a rule nisi calling upon Mr. Bedwell to show cause why a rule of Court making an order of his Honor Sir William Manning a rule of Court, with costs, should not be rescinded.

Mr. Darley appeared for Mr. Bedwell.

From the affidavits it appeared that his Honor Sir William Manning ordered a review of taxation of a bill of costs of Mr. Bedwell to be taxed with costs, to be paid by Mr. Struve. The costs were taxed on the 1st June, and amounted to £29 9s. 4d. That sum was demanded on the 4th June from Mr. Curtisa's town agent for Mesars. Tribe and Newman, of Tamworth, attorneys for Mr. Struve. Mr. Curtiss wrote to Tamworth, attorneys for Mr. Struve. Mr. Curtiss wrote to Tamworth, attorneys for Mr. Struve. Mr. Curtiss wrote to Tamworth on the 5th for instructions. On the 5th a formal demand was again made on Mr. Curtiss, who had received no answer from his principals, but required that the matter should not be hurried on, as he expected a cheque from Tamworth. On the 10th a brief was prepared and instructions given the counsel to move to make the Judge's order a rule of Court. The motion was made on the next day (the 11th) at 11 o'clock, and was granted with costs, an affidavit of demand and non-complisnes being read. By the morning's post on the 11th Mr. Curtiss received a draft from his principals at Tamworth, and at once, by 10.33 a.m., sent his cheque to the office of Mesers. Spain and Sly, astorneys for Mr. Bedwell; a clerk received the cheque and gave a receipt. Mr. Sly, who had the management of the matter, was not made aware of the payment, and in ignorance of that fact, the motion was made, the affidavit of demand and refusal having been made on a previous day. The cheque was returned to Mr. Curtiss and was again sent to Mr. Sly. The Court unanimously made the rule absolute to as aside the rule of Court, and by a majority, without costs. Mr. Justice Ha

THE GREAT TURF SWINDLE.

The trial of the five uses charged with the fraud upon the Countessee de Genocuri was concluded at the Central Criminal Court on April 23. In the course of his summing up, Mr. Baron Huddleston said he had been informed that the Governor of Newgate, having casson to suspect that an artempt had been made to corrupt the officials of the guol, caused the prisoner Benson to be searched, and upon him were found decements which disclosed a scheme for an occape as I old and as ingenious as could well be conceived. It was painful to think, his lordship said, that in our gabis there were means of corrupting subordinates. To do so with the superior officers was perfectly absurd, but when Benson was in custody he found means of communicating with other prisoners, and that there was some person exabiling him to communicate with the outer world was beyond all question. The jury found Benson guilty of forgery; Wallams Kurr, Frederick Kurr, and Bale guilty on some of the counts; and Murray an accessory after the fact. It was proved that in 1572 Benson had been convicted of felony at that Court in functing a receipt for £1000. The Comtasse de Goncourt, the presentrix, usked that mercy might be shown to the prisoners. The Judge, in passing sentences, said there was one point he had been accorded to take into consideration, namely, that, although Benson had properly been found guidry, there was no intent to commit the more recome offence of forgery. It might be that the thought the offence was one point he had been accounted to take into consideration, namely, that, although Benson had properly been found guidry, there was no intent to commit the more serious offence of forgery. It might be that the thought the offence was one point he had been accused to take into consideration, and the scheme which he had planned and carried out was an organized which that it was forgery, and forgery of a very serious description.

PRESENTATION TO THE REV. ADMINIACON RIGHEY.—
On the evening of the 21st instant, at the close of the examination at the Majes Brothers' school, a very interesting obversiony took place. The scholars, without any previous intimation to their pastor, had provided a very appropriately-written and handsomely-filtuminated and framed address for presentation to him on the occasion. After the presentation in alc been made, Archdeacon Rigney responded in very kind and affectionate terms.

Manter Brownerse's Senon.—The samual public examination and distribution of prizes in connection with this school took place on the evening of the 21st instant, at 8t. Patrick's School. The programme included examinations in reading, spelling, grammar, tables, geography, parving, analysis, arithmetic, Euclid, and mensuration, and free land drawing on blackthoard, the more solid p-rts bring relieved by a judicious selection of recitations and dislogues. The examination was considered by two of the Brothers. The children numbered about 106, and displayed great smartness and proficiency in the various subjects, and acquitted thouselves in a very satisfactory and praisevorchy manner throughout. The public appeared to be much interested in the proceedings. The room was quite filled with visitors, who testified their appreciation by frequent and hearty applause. The prize books were presented by the Archdeacon, and were of a good and valuable class, and were said to have cost £20.

Transassant as all ways-station, and now of Orange, was presented with a handsomely-mounted and gratifying address, accompanied by a gift of 52 new sovereigns, fresh from the Mint, placed upon a sterling silver salver bearing an appropriate inectipation. The Mayor of Parraganta (Mr. C. J. Byrnes, M.P.) presided. There was a numerous attendance. Mr. Woodgate suitably acknowledged the tribute of public excessem and regard.

Cumberland Mctal Improvement were actishectory to the society. The Bev. Canon Gunther presided.

[PRON OUR CORRESPONDING.]

DUARNO the last fortaight the weather has been showery with infervais of fine sunny days, which had a wonderful effect in forching the growth of the herbags; and the whole face of the country has undergone a complete change. What was abort time ago bere ground is now covered with a beautiful green sward, and the young gram is growing rigorously. At present there is not much improvement in the condition of stock, but a few weeks more will doubtless tell a different story, and we may again expect to see really last stock on the road to muricot. Local transactions have been condined to small drafts of fix a theep and testies to Deniliquin butchers; but with the change in the season, sales of stock will no doubt, soon become a pentitul there will doubtless be a large demand for store stock. On Monday 3700 fat sheep, from Woorcoma station (M. Beau's), were strucked here for the Melbourne market, and on Tuesday fifteen trucks of fat eastic (Liyons's), from Juanhung, a wore sent to their destination.

To-day, a large expedition started from Dentiliquin for To-oper's Greek, for the purpose of stocking the country, and will then proceed to Wilcarhing, and hence across country to their ultimate destination. The expedition is in charge of Mr. N. Carhy, a flower of considerable cryptomens, who has before him a duty of an architous nature, and east involving a large amount of responsibility; but one that he is well qualified to perform with croffit to himself, and satisfaction to his employers. The committee of the Mechanica' Institute have decided to organise the novelty (for Demliquin) of a spelling his, the proceeds of which will be devoted to wrate augmenting the funds of the institution, and have decided upon giving prizes to the value of £5. The idea, though somewhat said in other places, will have the charm of movelty in Demliquin, and will I fancy attract a large audience to churkle own the discounture of those amoug their neighbours who may have the hardhood to simulate to a public test of that hardwards in regard to orthography. The only thing likely to may the success is the probability of a dearth of compelitors, as in a small community where the majority of the inhabitants are known to one ambler, there is likely to be considerable diffidence about siring their ignorance or, to put it another way, few would reliah the title of reducing the strategy of the Mayarden of the Municipal Committee that the charter of the Municipal Committee in the charter of the Municipal Committee of the desired of the Municipal Committee of the desired of the Municipal Committee of the Mayarden of the Municipal Committee of the desired of the Municipal Committee of the Mayarden of the Municipal Committee of the Mayarden of the Municipal Committee of the desired of the Municipal Committee of the Mayarden of the Mayarden of the Mayarden of the Mayarden of the Municipal Committee of the Mayarden of th

At a meeting of the Municipal Conveil last night it was decided to appoint an additional officer, at the minery of £150 per annum, to set as inspector of minerance consistent of hall, and to assist otherwise in the general working of the numericality. At present the Council-dier's receives £250, and the herdsman £180 per annum. With theaddition of the new office it will bring up the total of municipal substrate to £580 per annum—a pretty respectable smount for managing the affairs of a town with a population which marriely exceeds 2000. Latterly the affairs of the Council hive been conducted loosely; very little work has been done by contract, though large sums are constantly being frittered away in patching and repairing by a gain; of lasy day workmen, who are under no proper supervised. The result points to the necessity of their being at least a poportion of practical men in the local court of alderman, whose affairs in regard to public works are containly not satisfactorily managed, composed, as if is at present, of professional men, storekeepers, stock agents, &c., who have not had the neces say; experience to quality them to deal, with matters requiring the attention of practical men.

IMPORTANT ADVICE TO ALL—Cleanse the vitiated blood whenever you find its innurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and alugglish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

My head was constantly aching, and my whole frame entirely shaken. Having seen the good effects of your filelstin of Anissed in saveral members of my family. I purchased a small bottle, and, when going to bed at nighttook a teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water, just warm. The effect was immediate; it arrested the tickling is my chest, I slept well, and arose perfectly restored in the morning, with the exception of debility, arising from fatigue by incessant coughing for some days previous. My cough entirely laft me, and has never returned. Having, since heard of a lady in the neighbourhood who for a longtime had laboured under a most distressing cough, and who had resorted to every remedy within her knowledge, I sent the remainder of the bottle to her; and that long-standing, obstinate, and (us she thought) incurable cough was repfectly cured. You are at perfect liberty to make what use you may please of this communication, as the contents grestrictly true. I shall take every opportunity of recommending your inestimable medicine, feeling as I do fully master, or young boys alone for the Grammar School or other High Schools of the colony.

The projector of this pruposed school has had large experience, and a special training calculated to enable him to make this school supply a want, which he knows to have been felt in many quarters; but before finally committing himself to so important an undertaking he is desirous of accertaining from the most influential supporters of higher education whether this want is general or not.

The only features of the proposed school which there is a call to state at present are:—

1. The school would be open to any boy of age or attainments NOT EXCENDING TWELVE (12) YEARS, except upon special medical advice in the case of weakly boys, when the limit will be THIRTHEN YEARS. Vide note.

2. MASTHER ONLY WOULD HAVE ONLY WO

6. The fees for the orunary currently and attainments guineas.

9 As none but boys of the same age and attainments would associate, thus one of the main objections that parents have to their boys acquiring the rudiments of a liberal curriculum in the society of boys of far greater age and attainments than themselves would be removed; and the school would fulfil its declared purpose of being auxiliary, but not opposed, to any High school.

Further particulars will shortly be published if the encouraging replies to this advertisement be sufficiently numerous.

Be good enough to address communications, for the next few days, to "Junior Sydney Grammar School" at the Sydney Grammar School, where personal inquiries will be answered at the Lodge during the temporary absence of the Sydney Grammar School, June 22nd, 1877.

AUCTION SALES.

Horses, Vehicles, and Harr GEORGE KISS will sell by auction, at the Bazaar, THIS DAY, at 11 o'clock, all lots not specially advertised; and at 12 o'clock, all lots specially advertised; Regular sales at the Bazzar daily, and at Camperdov any afternoon.

THOROUGHBRED MARES.

GEORGE KISS has received instructions from Mr. Justice Lutwyche, of Queensland (whose stud is overstocked with marcs), to sell by anction, at the Bazzar, on MONDAY, July 2nd, at 12 o'clock, without reserve, the following marcs:

if the hazaar, on MONDAY, July Zad, at 12 o'clock, without reserve, the following mares:

YOUNG MAY MOON-Bay mare, rising 5 years, by Yattendon from May Queen. Young May Moon is own sister to May Flower, well known on the Queensland turf, May Queen was a reputed Vagrant mare; Vagrant was by Vagabond (imported); dam by Whisker (imported); grand dam by imported Satellite from a mare imported by Mr. Rouse.

ported Satellite from a mare imported by Mr. Rouse.

MERRY MAY—Bay mare, rising 4 years, by Maribyrmong from May Fly. Merry May is own sister to Muster Mariner, who commenced his career as a two-year-old in April last, at Dalby, by running a dead heat in the Cinven Plate, I mile, with the Queen-land crack Nemo, and followed up this performance by comfortably winning the Sapling Stakes, at Ipswich, in both instances carrying overweight. Their dam May Fly is by Newbold's Fisherman, by imported Pitsford from May Queen. See "Queenhand Turf Guide," 1875-6, p. 179.

Both of these mares were bred by the Judge, and are well worthy the attention of colonial breeders, particularly of such as desire to breed upstanding and stylish carriage horses, as they both stand 15 hands, and have capital shoulders.

BROUGHAM, WAGGONETTE, PHAETON, HORSES, HARNESS, &c.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE. PRELIMINARY NOTICE.

S. BROWN has received instructions of from the Executrix in the estate of the late Leonard C. Cheethem, Eeq., to sell by public auction, on a day to be named, at the Boyal Rotel, Dubbe.

All that splendid equatting property, situated in the heart of the finest graning district of New South Walos, and having frontages to the Castlereagh River, Marthagus and other creeks with the adjoining blocks, was originally specially chosen, and may well be ranked with the cream of the district, both for its wool-growing and fattening qualities, while its favourable area with central position must at once attract the attention of intending purchasors.

With the station will be sold about (11,000) eleven thousand station-bred sheep, and these for a long course of years received the greatest attention from the late proprietor, the city taking a very high stand in the London market, where the well-known C in diamond over Bongesbong brand was eagarly bough up.

There is much new fencing on the run, this m connection with a beautifully situated, and comfortable family residence, surrounded with outhouse of every description bulk with judicious care, a garden well stocked with free and vince, renders it not only an enviable home, but a station, which if properly worked must return a handsome profit.

C. WALKER and CO. (in conjunction of with Ryan and Hammond) have received instructions from the owner to sell by public auction, a Menuics' Hotel, Melbourne, on FRIDAY, 13th July, at 3 o'clock.

The THURADULBAH OR BOHEMA STATION, near the Namoi River, New South Wales, containing 100,000 (one hundred thousand) acres of thicky-grassed open forest country, well and permanents watered by the Bohens and Cowel Creeks.

The Stock consists of 18,500 breeding ewes, of which 4000 are South Australian bred, of large frame, specially selected for breeding from long-woolled rams. There are eight pure Lincoln rams upon the station.

The country is sound and healthy, well adapted fix sheep, in an excellent wool-growing district. The whole run is now reserved as a State forest, and is at present wellphily stocked. The improvements consist of good home station, with all necessary convenience, horse paddeck, yards, &c., as well as an out-station, twelve miles distant from the head station, with overseer's cottage, 20 cattle, 10 horses, furniture and plant to be given in, some fencing wire at cost price, carriage added.

The improvements are in accordance with the proper rorking of such a magnificent property, and consist of tomestead at Quantambone, with out-offices, stockyard, addocks, &c.: overseer's house, with woolshed, cc.; sheep yards, men's huts, &c. At Gundarium and at another part of the run are also overseer's stablishments, thereby onabling the management to be of the most complete nature. There is a large quantity of both sheep and cattle proof fencing, also drafting-yards in convenient places, and lately a new stockyard has been rected, capable of holding 5000 head of cattle.

Together with this property will be sold seted, expable of holding 5000 head of cattle.

Together with this property will be sold

11,000 head of cattle, of different ages and exces,

2571 three-year-old wethers

2944 two-year-old ditto

5058 weanners, mixed seems

All horses, stores, and plant belonging to the station.

The above stock are well-known for the superiority of their breeding, and particular attention is directed tof the care which has been bestowed upon them. The cattle have all been bred on the station, and no expense has been spared in introducing the purest and most fachionable blood into the herd. In both the McHourse and Sydney far markets the "G D" and "House" brand always commands the highest price ruling, and the demano for surplus breeding cows amply testifies to the high state of perfection to which the character of the stock has been broughts as regards the sheep, it is only necessary to state that they are nearly all from the proprietors. Togannam Station, on the Murrumbidgee, and a finer lot of ewes could not be purchased, consisting as they do at selected stock from one of the best focks in Biverine, and sincepoled to form the nucleus of a first-class breed should is or were considered to the best flocks in Riverina, and intended to form the nucleus of a first-class breed should it be thought desirable at any time to substitute sheep entirely for cattle. The run is admirably adapted for such a change, and the cheap river corriage of wool and stores to the door is a matter of great advantage. Inspection of this really choice investment is particularly invited, and the agents can confidently recommend it as being one of the finest stations, both as regards description of country and quality of stock, which has come before the public for a long period. It is for bona fide sale on the day day named, and will not be disposed of

MERCURY."

On and after July 7th the CUMBERLAND MERCURY will be enlarged to 8 pages, and will contain 56 columns of clearly printed original matter.

The increasing demand on our space, both by advertifiers and contributors, arising from the growing importance of the country, renders the step measury.

Encouraged by past success, and hoping for a continuance, the Proprietor at considerable outlay has made many improvements both in the liferary and mechanical degartments, to make the MERCURY in all respects worthy of the country it represents.

The unexampled growth of the circulation of the MERCURY in the Cumberland country is the best possible tribute to its superior character as a provincial journal, especially as this has occurred without resort by the Proprieter to any special means of advecting claims. It is the simple result of the public appreciation of its practical value as which for reliable information, both as a newspaper and an advertising sheet.

It has the largest circulation in the county of Cumberland of any newspaper (leaving out the Metropolitan district, but not the Metropolitan Press), and is found in almost every household out of a p-pullation of 60,000 inhabitants.
